

Death Award

As a result of the death of a qualified individual, the individual's surviving family members may apply to the organization for a relief award when the death occurs while on duty or performing his/her assigned duties. The death event must be as a result of the individual's legitimate, lawful actions.

Any award provided as a result of such an event shall be directed toward the reasonable expenses stemming from the event and not covered by other legitimate and available sources. Temporary, reimbursable awards shall be allowed to cover expenses for which future payments from other sources may become available. These awards may be subject to re-payment upon receipt of such future payments from other sources.